In the queen's bench, a division in the action was brought by a person named J. Mr. Justice Mathews gave his judgment that Bradlaugh's defense, that the right to take an affirmation instead of an oath is allowed in courts of law, was wrong. From this decision Bradlaugh will probably appeal.

At Mr. Bradlaugh's request, execution in his case has been stayed in order to allow him to appeal.

In the house of commons this afternoon Mr. J. E. As a general thing, the citizens of Atlanta seem disposed to look upon the enterprise as a sort of local enterprise, similar to a county fair; whereas the business men of the north see clearly that it is essentially a national and international project, as important and as attractive in many respects as the centennial exposition.

No far as Atlanta is concerned, it is a mere matter of business. No city in the south has ever before had such an opportunity to enlarge its busine sconnections, display its advantages, and add to its reputation. No investment that could be suggested to a business man is safer than the subscription which Atlanta is called upon to make. Now, then, what are our citizens going to do about it? Vanderbilt as a Political Economist.

A correspondent, alluding to our comments on Mr. Vanderbilt's remark that "capital makes labor," suggests that we are flying in the face of political economy; but this is a mistake. Our position is simply this, that labor is now, and has always been, self-supporting, and that this fact constitutes the true dignity of labor. The political economists do not say with Mr. Vanderbilt that "capital "makes labor;" political economists may be mistaken, but they are not ignoram.

Is a section of the republican party says he is not sufficiently educated to hold office, while the other section says he is getting to much education to be a good citizen. It is impossible to reconcile these conflicting views.

What is love?" asked an exchange the other day; and, as a matter of course, up jumped a Brooklyn paper with a definition.

It strikes us that this enterprise is too far west of Brooklyn rease and dimunition of labor; in other rds, that capital is a wage-fund and that without this wage-fund labor could not proceed. This is very nearly as preposterous as Mr. Vanderbilt's assertion, but it lacks the essence of ignorance. Mr. Vanderbilt maintains that capital not only supports labor but creates it; the political economists go no further than the statement that labor cannot proceed until a sufficiency of the products of labor is accumulated to support it. Mr. Vanderbilt is stupid, while and that without this wage-fund labor to accomplish any widespread result.

During the financial discussion of 1877, THE CONSTITUTION made bold to tread apon the toes of the accepted theory which made labor subordinate to the existence of capital, but our suggestions vere yague, dim and uncertain, compared with the crushing logic which Mr. George employs in pursuing the sophistries of Adam Smith, Malthus, Ricardo and John Stuart Mill. Our correspondent should know, however, that none of these thinkers agree with Mr. W. H. Vanderbilt that "capital makes labor." This eminent person has a political economy ot his

A Flutter Among the Magnates The general movement among the people to protect themselves against the aggressions of corporate monopolies, has aroused the railroad men from the dignified, not to say disdainful apathy with which they have heretofore regarded the liscussion that has been going on, with occasional intermissions, for several years, so that now the metropolitan newspapers are full of the special pleaand sophistries of those who are interested in perpetuating the present system, which permits the lawless robbery of the people. It is not difficult for newspaper men to understand that the recent publication of the views of Jay Gould and Vanderbilt in the New York Herald was the result of what is technically known as procured interized opposition to the amendments, and they will undoubtedly be adopted.

In no time in the history of our civilization has fiction had a broader field and more extended sway than it is the world of nopular reading to day. Thousands in our country are unable to purchase standard novels; thousands more have not the time to devote to such works, but in whose minds the love of flett in exerts an influence which, if from erly ollowed is salutary and imposing. It is then a matter of congratuation to the rading public that the serial stories, so eagerly sought for by large numbers of American readers can claim for their author so scholarly a gentleman and so finished a writer as Professor Peck. If it be true that the high schools and universities of the day formulate thought and disseminate theory for the well equipp d and the eminent men, it is equally true that the tone of the middle grade is pitched in the grammar schools of the land. If, then, it be evident that the first class reviews of the country are becoming the vehicle of its best thought, and we believe they are such, it is no less evident that the literary exhecting of the masses BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Such a grade of literature cannot be neglected; its demands are such as to engage the best talent and the choicest composition. Who develops the imagination of a country and moulds the baste of a people wields a class of power which its orators and its statesmen cannot approach. It is for this reason, then, that we view -tith satisfaction the work of such scholars and gentlemen as Professor Peck, of Atlanta, in so widely-read a journal as the New York Ledger. A Most Remarkable Man.

Now we know why Hunt was flushed for cabinet place. Though unknown to fame he is really a remarkable man. An esteemed First-da contemporary, speaks of him as "leaving Charles ton becouse of his opposition to Calhoun and the nullifiers." Mr. Hunt is said to be about fifty years old. The nullification resolution was passed November 24, 1882, just after Adrew Jack son's second election. At the time that the mon strens doctrine of nullification drove the future secretary of the navy from his native state, to seek under the protecting segis of the pelicant he spirit of toyalty which he found not under the shadow of the palmetto, he was of that age whet statesmen are wont to follow where their in the leafly a period in his history he hated traction under whatever guise. Hair Restorer

P. A. Lavigne, Wig Maker and Dealer in Human Hair Goods, 269½ Main St., Memphis, says he is selling the Louisiana Creole Hair Restorer to his numerous customers. It proves to be all which is claimed for it by the proprietors—restoring the hair to its original color, beauty, and softness, prevents its falling out, and is sure protection against baldness; cures dandruff and diseases of the head.

Richmond, Va., October 3, 1868.

S. Mansfield & Co.:

Proprietors of the Louisiana Creole Hair Restorative—
Gentlemen: I promised to report to you my opinion of the Hair Restorative I procured while in your city during the month of September. My hair at that time was rapidly falling. It was falling out, and to appearance, had lost all its vitahity. What remained had a brash, wiry appearance. I have used three bottles of the six I purchased, and the result has been that my hair has regained all its original vigor and health. It has become thick and glossy, while formerly it was apparently dead. I have now stopped using it, for there seems no necessity for a continuance. The balance of the Restorative I promised to some of my lady friends who are highly delighted in its use. We consider the Creole Hair Restorer the best remedy for the human hair ever heard of or known. JACOB GODLETT.

Atlanta, Ga., March 4, 1881.
The Louisiana Creole Hair Restorer is regarded as the best preparation of the kind that we handle. Our sales of it are increasing daily and we believe it is all the is claimed for it. When our customer wish any preparation for the hair we alway advise them to use the Creole Hair Restorer LAMAR, RANKIN & LAMAR.

Memphis, Jenn.
Gentlemen: I take great pleasure in stating that I have used your "Louisiana Craole Hair Restorer," and have found it the best dressing for the hair I have ever tried. I can confidently recommend it for restoring the hair to its natural color, preventing its falling out, and imparting to it a fine glossy appearance—rendering it invaluable as a hair dressing, aside from its restorative properties, and possessing the great advantage of never staining the most delicate fabric. Respectfully, MRS, E. F. COWDON.

Memphis, Tennessee.

Gentlemen: You request me to state what I have observed of the results following the use of your "Louisiana Creole Hair Restorer." Hitherto I have uniformly declined giving certificates for any patent preparation. In this instance, however, I think it right to state the fact that I know your preparation saved a friend of mine from threatened baldness. The falling off of the hair was arrested by a few applications; then the thin gray locks began to assume their natural color; and now, after using four bottles, there is a general and healthy growth of soft and silky hair all over the head. I do not hesitate to say, with a number of my friends who have used, or observed its use, that your "Louisiana Creole Restorer" is a success. Respectfully, ED, W. MUNFORD.

—Our city has a modest but very sweet addition to its population in the person of Senator Conkling's daughter, Mrs. William G. Oakman, who has quietly taken up her residence here. Mr. Oakman, who was superintendent of the Delaware and Lackawanna road at Utics, has gone into business in New York as a dealer in railroad sup plies. The young couple are extremely happy in each other's society, notwith standing the fact that the imperial senator takes no notice of them and always speaks contemptuously of his only child's husband as "Mrs. Conkling's son-in-law." Mrs. General McClellan and other leaders of society will do their best to make Mrs. Oakman happy in her new sphere; but the latter is very quiet and retiring, and her it tastes are artistic and literary rather than social.—New York C. New York—The heaviest decline of the season is reported this week, which, up to the close to day, had reduced the months %5%. The bears of a certainty achieved a terrible victory, and, while triumphantly successful in the accomplishment of their object, their gains incur a very serious loss to the general country. During the entire week a great loss of strength was felt; and, notwithstanding an occasional mild reaction would sometimes change the monotony of the situation, its effect on the public mind was extremely insignificant, and any inquiry would disclose a lack of confidence in a permanent advance, and the response that came signified a belief that lower prices would mark the course of the market for some days to come. The extravagant receipts, together with a falling off in the general market sand the prespect for an unusually large crop, has had a depressing influence on the market, and we would not be surprised to not still lower prices for next week. season, a pleasure to the refined and intelligent audience present; and the rendition of a programme which was arrang ed with taste and discrimination, deserved a far larger audience. There have been more brilliant gatherings inside of the opera-house to witness the efforts of possibly more brilliant lyric artistes, but we do not remember a more satisfactory entertainment than the one of last night. The company is a good one, with fine voices, and are educated musicians.

good one, with fine voices, and are educated musicians.

The performance opened with Madame Carreno's rendition on a superb piano of Liszu's Rapsodie Hongroise, No. 2, which revealed her perfect command over her instrument. Her powers of execution and her deicacy of fingering are admirable, and the quintessence of art exceedingly beautiful. We doubt if the dreamy, tropical languor We doubt if the dreamy, tropical languor of Gotischaik's playing, or the force and finish of Thaiberg, could have given more satisfaction than her rendition of the above. During the evening she gave several' gems from Handel, Chopin and Liszt, and in the most charming and perfect manner. The programme was varied by songs by Signor Stantini, Miss Underhill, Miss Koderick and Signor Tagliapieira The songs of Miss Roderick and Miss Underhill and the efforts of Signor Stantini were encored. In compliance with encores, Miss Underhill sang "Tis Rut a Little Faded Flower," Miss Roderick Sang "Maid o' Dundee," and Signor Stantini sang "I am a Simple Muleteer."

The concluding part of the evening's entertainment was the presentation of the fourth act of "II-Trovatore," in full costume. Miss Roderick as "Leo nora," was correct and artistic and sang with fine expression. Perhaps her emotional powers are superior to her voice. Miss Underhill personated "Azuena." She has a firm, clear voice—perhaps deficient in expression. What power lacking in her voice is supplemented by a clear timbre.

EDITORS CONSTATUTION: In your paper of the 8th Instant, in reporting a collision on the Western and Atlantic railroad, you very unjustly throw all the biame on the watchman at Dalton, by saying that he reported the track clear to the conductor of No. 13 that there were two sections of No. 13 that there were two sections of No. 14 that had not yet passed He also reported to Robert Gray, ticket agent at Dalton, that there were two sections of No. 12 that had not passed and Robert Gray also told the conductor of No. 13 that the two sections of No. 12 had not passed. The conductor's reply was, he had the right to the track and was going. The watchman did his duty fully.

JOHN RYAN At the Kimball House At the Kilmball reverse the Kimball was again thronged last night by the lovers of music. The areades and office were handsomely illuminated and the band, under Profesor Wiegard's leadership, gave the best rendition to quite a number of beautiful musical gems. These concerts are proving very attractive.

"Noveities."

As usual, the fashionable world are on the look out now for the latest novelties, and especially the ladies, will be delighted when they visit the mammoth emporium of the merchant prince, John Ryan. Never before have we ever witnessed such a lovely sight as the grand display made in the dress goods department by this house. It seems impossible to us that any lady could inagine styles that would surpass those seen by us. Every imaginable shade, tint, etc, that can be thought of in Parisian and English novelties are to be seen there, and especially a grand display in black and colored silks and satins. We also noticed an immense stock of Hamburg edging, and from the rush that these goods were having, we should judge them to be very chesp.

cheap.
Mr. Ryan will have his grand spring opening in a few days, and he promises to omething rich in the way of a treat in ovelties in dress goods, parasols, hosier Mr. Stephen A Ryan, son of Mr. Ryan Mr. Stephen A Ryan, son of Mr. Ryan, has just returned from the cest where he has been for the past three weeks buying goods and taking out of bond a great many silks, novelties, etc. that the house imports direct. The compliments that we heard showered upon these selections must, in themselves, amply repay Mr. Ryan for the trouble undergone in securing them. We would advise our lady readers to inspect this magnificent stock before purchasing.
